2013 Season Outlook: The patriots are looking to have a strong season this year. Making changes along with the addition of new players will help put the team in position to be successful. Seniors Jared Harris and Jasper Willis look to lead this young team. With the return of All-Conference receiver, Derek Stein, the offense looks to get better with more production. Ross Wainwright and Milan Gotcher will anchor a reassembled offensive line which looks to move the ball on the ground as well as the air this season. Zach Robbins, Matt Stemmler and Bryan Allyon will shoulder the workload at the running back position while being challenged by newcomers. On defense, Harris and Louis Fernandez look to anchor the secondary and shut down the passing game. While the loss of All-Conference Linebacker, John Buono, will hurt, there are a number of players expected to fill the void. A defense with good potential and an offense which continues to spread the field should have these patriots returning to their winning ways this season.
